Renata Avila
CEO, Open Knowledge Foundation

Renata is an international lawyer, author and advocate. She brings nearly 20 years of experience in sustainable development, digital transformation, policymaking and global internet activism. She is an affiliate to the Stanford Institute of Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence and was a 2020 Stanford Race and Technology Fellow at the Center for Comparative Studies in Race and Ethnicity at Stanford University. She holds an LLM from the University of Turin in Italy, a Diploma of International Law from the Hague Academy in The Netherlands and a law degree from Universidad Francisco Marroquin in Guatemala.

Renata is part of the World Economic Forum Expert Network on Digital Technologies, a member of the Global Board of Trustees of Digital Future Society, a board member of Open Future, a trustee of Common Action Forum, an advisory board member of Creative Commons, an advisory board member of Cities for Digital Rights, a Steering Committee Member of Just Net Coalition, member of the Board of Directors, Whistleblower Netzwerk (Germany), among other affiliations in a vast professional network extending across Europe, Latin America and North America.

She co-founded the <A+> Alliance for Inclusive Algorithms, the Progressive International and the Polylateral Association - an international platform cooperative for knowledge workers.

Email   renata.avila@okfn.org
Twitter   @avilarenata